Modal verbs can, may, must, have to

CAN

Form
Positive statement: I can go, You can go, He can go
Negative statement: I cannot speak (I can't speak)
Question: Can you come?
Negative question: Can he not walk? (Can't he walk?)
The past tense is could.

Use
1. Can is used to describe the ability to do something.
   I can swim very well.
   Can he speak English fluently? - No, he can't.
   We cannot sing at all!

2. It expresses the possibility to do something.
   We can go to the seaside at last. Our holidays start next week.

3. We use it to say that something is probable.
   It can be John. He has blond hair and he is wearing glasses.

4. It expresses the permission to do something.

MAY

Form
Positive statement: I may go, You may go, He may go
Negative statement: He may not speak
Question: May I help?
Negative question: May he not walk?

Use
1. May is used for permissions.
   You may borrow my car. I won't need it.
   May I smoke here? - No, you can't, I'm sorry.

2. It is used to express probability or prediction.
   They may call tomorrow. I hope so.

   The main difference between may and can is in style. May is more formal than can. Can is typical of spoken English.

3. The opposite of may is must not or may not.
   May I smoke here?
   You mustn't smoke here. (strong prohibition)
   You may not smoke here. (more polite, very formal)
   You can't smoke here. (informal spoken English)
MUST

Form

Positive statement: I must be, You must be, He must be
Negative statement: He must not speak (He mustn't speak)
Question: Must he help?
Negative question: Must he not walk? (Mustn't he walk?)

Use

1. Must is used for strong obligations. It is personal, because it shows the speaker's opinion or will.
   I must clean my teeth. I want to be healthy.
   You must go there. And do it right now!

2. It expresses strong recommendation.
   You must see it. It's the best film I've ever seen.

3. We use it to express certainty of the speaker.
   They must be at school by now. It's already 9 o'clock.

4. The opposite of must is need not.
   I must wash up. - No, you needn't. I've already done it.

5. Must not has a different meaning. It is used to express prohibition that involves the speaker's will.
   We mustn't come late today. Or the teacher will be very angry.
   He mustn't enter this room. It is dangerous.

Have to

Form

Positive statement: I have to be, You have to be, He has to be
Negative statement: I do not have to speak, He does not have to speak (I don't have to speak, He doesn't have to speak)
Question: Do I have to help? Does he have to help?
Negative question: Do I not have to walk? Does he not have to walk? (Don't I have to walk? Doesn't he have to walk?)

Use

While must is used to show the speaker's opinion or will, have to expresses an external obligation based on a rule or on the authority of another person. It is impersonal.

Compare:
Sarah, you must wear a coat today. It's cold.
(Sarah's mum wants her to wear a coat. It's her personal will.)
British students have to wear uniforms.
(This obligation expresses a general rule. It's impersonal.)

Similarly:
I must tidy my room.
(The speaker's will. In this case your own will. You want to clean you room.)
Mum says you have to tidy your room first.
(This sentence expresses the authority of another person. It's your mum's order.)

Notes

1. Sometimes the difference between must and have to is not important. But have to is more common.
   I must go home. I have to go home.
